

It has recently come to my attention that you (the FCC) is considering to lift the ban on media companies owning both a newspaper and TV station in the same city. I am writing this to express my deep concern over this proposed abolition of current law. The media coverage of events is of a low quality to begin with with many major news stations and newspapers owned by major multinational "special interest" companies. I believe that this proposed relaxations of current law will serve to further diminish the quality of news coverage and that it is a move to give more power to big business at the expense of the American citizen. The American citizen has the right to quality, unbiased news coverage and this will seriously damage this right. I ask you to please reconsider your actions.

Sincerely,
Andrew Kahn
